

Real-world Analogy: A Teacher

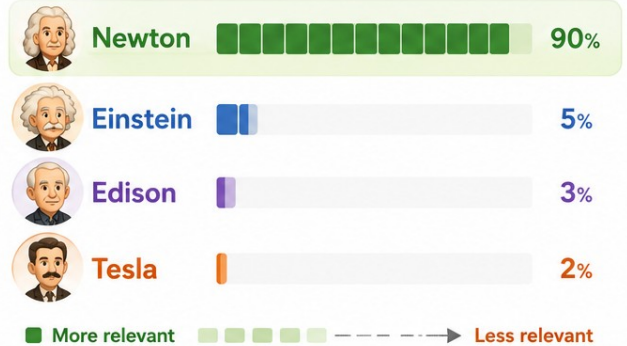

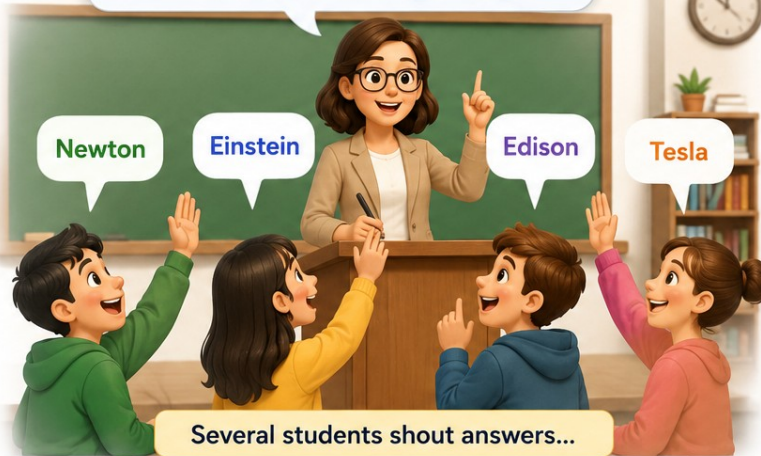

Imagine a teacher asks:

“Who discovered gravity?”

Would the teacher give every answer equal weight?

No.

The teacher focuses on the most relevant answer:

Self-attention works in the same way—it doesn't ignore any input, but it gives more weight to the information that is most relevant to the current prediction.

